

Join Our Team As

Senior Project Manager (m/f/d) for the European Standards of Care for Newborn Health (ESCNH)

Full time · Remote possible · Must reside in Germany

About GFCNI

GFCNI is the first global organization and network to unite patients, families, healthcare professionals, medical staff, and scientists from different disciplines, fields, and countries – all with the joint goal of advancing the health and quality of care for newborns and their families across the globe. We envision a future in which every baby born receives the right care, at the right time, in the right place!

Your Role

- Lead the strategic and operational development of the European Standards of Care for Newborn Health (ESCNH)
- Manage lifecycle processes, scientific monitoring, stakeholder workshops, and Delphi panels
- Oversee the creation of a digital self-assessment tool for neonatal care providers
- Support the Executive Board in evolving ESCNH strategy
- Represent patient and parent perspectives in EU-funded research and communication activities
- Optional: Contribute to scientific writing (manuals, publications, position papers)
- Represent GFCNI at conferences and public events

What We Offer

- Purposeful work in a globally respected NGO
- A passionate, efficient, and collaborative team
- Permanent contract with flexible, remote-friendly hours (Germany-based)
- Flexible hours, remote work options, and monthly tax-free perks
- 30 vacation days plus December 24 & 31 off
- Competitive salary in line with foundation standards

Your Profile

- Doctorate in a health-related discipline (e.g. public health, epidemiology, health sciences)
- Strong background in qualitative research; implementation science a plus
- 3+ years' experience in leading complex, international projects and teams
- Proven analytical, organizational, and leadership skills
- Clear, effective scientific writing and presentation style
- Structured, proactive, and team-oriented
- Fluent English; additional languages are an asset
- Empathy, cultural sensitivity, and the ability to engage diverse audiences
- Willing to travel nationally and internationally
